The teachers of the South church primary department held their regular monthly meeting last Friday evening with Mrs. George M. R. Holmes on Whittier street. Mrs. W. E. Lombard, who was present as a guest, gave a very interesting and instructive account of the teachers' convention which she recently attended at North Adams.

The committee in charge of the entertainment and sale to be held by the Helping Hand society of the Free church have well nigh completed their plans. The sale is to take place on November 4; admission, afternoon and evening, ten cents, children under twelve years of age half price. Aprons, cake, candy and flowers will be for sale, also ice cream and cake. An interesting program will be presented by the Dusenbury family of Peacham, Vt., well-known entertainers who make their first appearance in Andover. Miss Ethel Lawson of Danvers, a charming soprano singer, will also assist. Miss Lawson never fails to please, wherever she goes, and the committee are congratulating themselves that they have secured her for the evening.

Fire This Morning

A call from box 54 summoned the fire department to the railroad bridge on Main street this morning to extinguish a fire which had started there. The trouble was quickly and easily overcome.

To Massachusetts Farmers

The state forester, F. W. Rane, desires to call to the attention of all owners of apple orchards the opportunity which is theirs to render to the Commonwealth the most valuable aid in its tremendous fight to suppress the gypsy moth. It is only within a few years that modern methods of orcharding have been adopted in Massachusetts and their value proven. For many years it has been the custom of farmers to plant trees, and then for lack of scientific knowledge neglect to give them the care they demand from year to year to make them strong and vigorous. As a result there are thousands of apple orchards scattered all over the state, containing trees filled with cavities and dead wood yielding very little fruit, thus being little, if any, value to the owner. The presence, however, of these trees scattered throughout the gypsy and brown-tail infested area of the state, is a serious obstacle in the way of accomplishing thorough work in suppressing these insects. It is the nature of the gypsy moth to deposit its eggs in sheltered places, and millions of them are laid deep down in the cavities of these old trees, making it impossible for them to be detected and destroyed by the moth hunter. At the proper season they hatch, and the caterpillars emerge, and begin their ravages upon the foliage of the trees. It is undoubtedly true that many of these trees, if properly treated by cementing or tinning of the cavities, pruning and cultivation, may be brought back to a healthy condition and made to yield bountifully. If it is not deemed desirable to do this, then the trees should be cut and burned as a matter of economy to both the owner and the state.

Important Subjects for the State Conference of Charities

Joseph Lee, one of the members of the Boston school committee, has aroused considerable discussion by his declaration in favor of Sunday play. He believes that the Sunday laws, as they stand, are responsible for much disorderliness and other evil especially among the young people of the cities. It is his desire that the people shall seriously consider this matter as a foundation for future Sunday legislation of a more liberal sort. Mr. Lee has been the chief worker for the establishment of playgrounds in our cities and towns. His views on the importance of play are of great value. He will speak at the opening session of the State Conference of Charities, in Fitchburg, on Wednesday evening, October 26, and will be listened to with great interest.

With the great increase in mental diseases noticeable in all parts of the country, public attention is naturally aroused by the development of the new science of psycho-pathology, or the scientific treatment of such diseases. The Thursday morning session of the conference will be devoted to this vital subject. The new Psychopathic hospital in Boston will be described. The re-education and occupation in recreational activities and useful industries of the many comfortable chronic patients who should be afforded the pleasures and natural interests of a home will be presented. To confirm the value of new methods of treatment a visit will be made to the state colony of the insane at Gardner.

The secretary of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, who has worked with families in distress in three of the largest American cities, the able judge of one of the busiest city courts, the secretary of the Massachusetts Probation Commission, the president of the United Textile Workers, and others will discuss the problem.

This meeting should not only give a clearer understanding of the law and the problem, but also show how the community and the court may work more closely together in teaching the fathers and the boys of today that Massachusetts expects her sons to meet their obligations.

Teams Split Even

The R. C. O. A. bowling team split even with the Rangers in the Andover bowling league Wednesday evening, taking one string and the pinfall. The R. C. O. A. won the first string, 445 to 412. The Rangers took the second string, 449 to 442, and the third string, 447 to 439. The R. C. O. A. captured the pinfall by 18 pins, 1326 to 1308. A. Ryley of the Rangers was high rolled with 279 for three strings. P. Hardy of the R. C. O. A. had the highest single string, 100. The summary:

HISTORICAL ANDOVER NO. 151

Harnden Notes

The first appearance of a Harnden in Andover is attended with a mystery we are still endeavoring to explain. The same day Barachias Harnden of Andover was recorded here in marriage with Mary Johnson, daughter of Dr. Returne Johnson of Medfield, the same couple were recorded at Medfield, but the groom's name was Barachias Arnold, July 24, 1701. Why the two names were thus used is not yet explained. His name is plainly signed upon a deed with John Abbott as 'chias Harndine in 1697 as if already a resident. He died suddenly of smallpox in 1703, leaving the widow to become the second wife of Samuel Sady. The ancestors of Lowell Mason and others of his name declare the daughter Mary married a Mason. That is also a mystery. I have what appears to be the daughter of Barachias marrying Joseph Dane at maturity, and after his death she became the wife of Joshua Frye and ancestress of a large family. Elizabeth, perhaps a half-sister, and a daughter by a former wife of Harndine, I think will prove to be Abigail Frye of Boston, married the year her father died, John Abbott (3), and was ancestress of the well-known line of Abbotts who were born in that line of gifted men. She named one son Barachias for her father, a man whose descendants include Capt. Moses Abbott, Enoch, Noah and many sisters who married Russells, etc., this family best representing this good man as to Abbott blood today in Andover. The same year, 1703, a will was presented as that of Barachias Arnold, made 1688, a mariner about to go to sea, and left all estate in the hands of his wife Abigail. As the death of our Barachias was sudden, perhaps the heirs of the first wife, of whom Elizabeth was one, received the estate. A son, Barachias, we think, was born, besides Mary, who married Dane and Frye, and from some correspondence, he may have gone to Windham, Ct., where my search-er thinks he could have taken the name of his mother, Johnson. His age and all the circumstances seem to indicate such a scattering of this odd family.

Edward Arnold, also called Arnold, of Boston, had a son Barachias of suitable age for the career of this mariner. Here we must leave this stray grandfather of so many of us, who left only his name as a memorial.

To Reading we owe our latest line of Harndens, always called Horn-dale in the earliest records. I have about come to the conclusion that Arnold and Horn-dale are attempts to spell the old Virginia name of Arndell, found among early settlers there. Richard and Edward were both used in those lines, but the Boston Arnold and the Reading Richard Harndell, alias Harnden, are not yet connected. Unfortunately for us, the early town clerk of Reading in many cases skipped the maiden name of brides in records. Three of the first Harndens thus suffered and no study has availed to secure them. Perhaps some early Lynn or Charlestown family provided a Mary for Richard Harndell (1), October 26, 1666, another Mary for his son, Benjamin (2), in 1691, and a Susanna for son John (2), in 1707. Later, Benjamin sought a wife on the Andover side in Elizabeth Holt, saved to us by deeds of estate he shared.

These Harndens, descendants of the two sons of Richard, are represented today in Reading, Wilmington and Andover, but Wilmington holds the most, so I conclude the estates lay earliest near the line of separation when Wilmington was set off from Reading in 1730, rather than on the side given by Woburn.

Only a sketch can be given of the movements and alliances of these got a record in all three towns, mostly sons who learned trades. Hepzibah (2) was one of the first to arrive here, becoming the wife of Abel Chandler, and ancestress of the family of Capt. Ben Ames of West Parish and all his following, already set forth in Sketch 61, July 16, 1897. The family of Benjamin (2) left for Windham County, Ct., before 1736, and of Ebenezer (2) I glean only a few traces. To John and Susanna we owe most of the blood both sides of the county line. John (3) married Mary Jaquith of Woburn in 1727, and appears by church records to be placed in North Reading church, and at times in Andover South church. His sister married Barachias Farnum, of Haverhill latest. Others married Wilmington men. John (3), only son, lost his first four children in 1737 between the ages of eight and three years. Joseph (4) married Esther Pierce, dying the first year of the war, 1776. One daughter, Rachel, (5) married Simon Furbush of Andover, 1786. They lived on the Bardwell place in West Parish and the only child, Rachel, married a Bardwell and inherited the farm. Other daughters of Joseph married Trulls and Bucks. A son, Joseph (5), left Joseph (6), called "blind fiddler" at his death as given in Reading records, 1852, and may be recalled by some of our elders. John (3) left Capt. John (4), with Ruth Pierce, Joshua (4) with Sarah Cornell, a well-known line, (see Sketch III), Peter Cornelius, November 8, 1901, and Lieut. Benjamin, who took Hannah Kidder of Tewksbury, he dying in 1836 at 91, she in 1839 at 91.

Capt. John (5), son of John (4), married Rebecca Parker, but moved hither and thither; his son John (6) married Mary Holt, one of the girls raised on Holt's Hill, and he died in 1871, our side of the line, a farmer. His only child was Stillman, so long a citizen of Andover, born 1839, died 1900. He was educated in the district school and Phillips Academy, helped his father get out ship timber which abounded in our south districts, and learned the carpenter's trade, leaving the work of a skillful artisan as a memorial and serving last with Tye Rubber Company as did his son John (7) later. His widow, Harriet E., (Tucker) survives, and the daughter Harriet as the wife of Dr. John Leitch, is with us. Chester (8), son of John (7), and Katherine McTiernan, has not yet had time to show what is back of his name as last of the long line born in Andover.

Samuel (6), son of Samuel (5), of Reading, I find contributed Hannah (7), wife of Noah B. Abbott, while brother Henry (7) and wife Eunice Pierson and children were residents of both towns a while.

Col. Joshua (4) and Sarah Cornell had a daughter Susanna (5), who married Nathan Eames and was a grandmother to Charles Eames of Andover, who is doing credit to her now in his new home, but who had an Andover training.

Lieut. Benjamin and Hannah Kidder of Wilmington were hard to follow. Of two sons, I recover Jesse (5) and Jonathan (5). Jesse (5) came just across the line for Mary Holt, who lived in Holt's Row, a distant cousin of the other Mary. Some of her children, I judge, were born in Reading, some near Nashua, N. H. Anyway, they came back to us again. Jesse (6), born 1811, died here, 1881, a farmer, I think, on the George Harnden place in Holt district. (I shall be glad to be set right). He was born in Reading, but married Dorothy Willey of Ossipee whose name reminds one of the famous landlady in the White Mountains that buried one family of the name, and a fine musical director I was guided by in the Lawrence public schools, also our missionary friend of the Cherokees once resident here. A brother, Warner Harnden (6), was born in Nashua, a young machinist, and died here in 1853 of the dread typhoid fever. Andover no longer fears. Hannah Jane (7), wife of Charles E. Abbott; Henry Clinton (6), one of our mates at old Punched, with wife, Mary Carter; Mary D., head of the hospitable home of Holt Farnham of North Parish; Laura A., (7) who went away with Joseph Fulton, who came from Deering, N. H., to help Dodge and Beard so long ago; Geo. W., (7) whose home was in Lynn, mainly a successful shoe manufacturer, and who restored the old farm to its best estate—all these lived, while three small girls succumbed early to infantile troubles.

Jesse (5) had a brother Jonathan (5), who married Rhoda Abbott of Wilmington, whose mother was a Blanchard, and she was born up country of Andover stock. One son, Everill (6), married Julia A. Clemmons, of a well-known family of Ballardvale residence, in 1856, and the record of their daughter, Annie M. (7) and her marriage to Frank Mace Foster of Tewksbury is in Wilmington records. They lost their old industrial Foster farm by fire, and a carpenter by trade, came to us, and we have raised at least two boys, one of whom bears the name of William Harnden Foster, and if you wish to see what he is about, look in Chase's window at his original sketches, eagerly secured for the art works of one of our leading periodicals. Few they be, but much lies back of them of old French Huguenot stock, of Saxon grit and Norman wit the grandmothers saved for us.

Where Your Nickel Goes

Out cent to move, another cent and a quarter to man, and almost one more cent to maintain the street car systems of this state, were spent out of each nickel paid by passengers during the last fiscal year, according to figures from the recent reports of the Board of Railroad Commissioners that have recently been tabulated at the headquarters of the Massachusetts Street Railway association in Boston. Over half a cent more, out of each five-cent fare, has been turned over to tax collectors and lawyers by the street railways. When the balance of the nickel has been shaved off for insurance, office expenses, salaries and rentals, these figures show that little over three-quarters of one cent has been left for the companies that collect it.

That the penny and a quarter paid from each passenger's nickel to the men who run the cars has been multiplied to almost eight million dollars in wages throughout the state in one year is shown by these figures of the railroad commission. For the power to move the public in this time some three and a half millions of dollars have been spent by the street railways. Besides the penny for power and the penny and a quarter for employees, the rest of the third cent in the nickel is shown to go for some three million dollars' worth of maintenance of tracks. The up-keep of the 8,000 cars used to move the public, as well as the interest on the funds that have built up the cross country and city street railway systems of the Bay State, has been returned from the fourth penny of every nickel taken in during the year covered by these official reports. Though one whole penny from every carfare is required to pay interest charges in New York State, it is recorded, little over half a cent is necessary in the Bay State, where strict supervision and the conservative character of investors have made the relation of physical value to street railway securities the highest in the world.

To the tax treasuries of communities all over the state a third of a cent of the nickel fare is shown to have been paid by the state street railway men. Their office expenses have used up about a quarter of a cent. Reduced to decimals, these figures from the Board of Railroad Commissioners show that only 86 of one cent has been left out of each five-cent fare paid by every passenger in one year, when these chief expenses have been provided for. Other tabulated costs reduce this return to the companies below this figure.

Largest of all the items of expense of moving the public of the whole state, the wages of the army of some 18,000 motormen and conductors is recorded in the official reports. The employment of thousands of men and the purchase of supplies at the power houses is shown to be second. Taxes paid to the towns of the state come high on the list with a total of over two million dollars.

OLD ANDOVER PRINTER

R. Wm. Waterman once Worked at the Andover Press. Tells Interesting Andover Story as Part of Reminiscences

At the September meeting of the Suburban Press association, an intensely interesting story of sixty years in the printing business was told by R. Wm. Waterman of Athol. A part of the story is so local in its color we publish it herewith.

"Finding that I would not work for him he inquired if I would accept of a position as an assistant foreman in a large office in the country, to take charge of the make-up of letter press book work and get forms ready for the press. It was work I always enjoyed, and I replied that I would, and he gave me a letter of recommendation—the latter must have been prompted by the knowledge he had obtained of my being a graduate of Cambridge University—not college, but printing office. The letter was to a Mr. Stiles, foreman of Draper's printing and publishing house, Andover, Mass. I was accepted and worked under this man longer than any other individual, it was said, with one exception. I probably would have got along with him for still a greater length of time, had it not been for a joke perpetrated upon him by one of the fellows in the room over which I had charge. Mr. Stiles had suddenly become interested in the Congregational church and its minister and boasted of his piety, but those working under him could see no change of heart; he remained the same surly, stubborn fellow. He evidently had discovered that ministers, as well as others, do not object to a glass of good cider occasionally, and having some of an excellent quality on hand he brought up to my room a two-gallon can, and instructed the boy to take it down to Rev. Mr. — when he went to the village after work. The can was left in the hallway and one of the men in my room scented the contents, and having tested the quality recommended it to his associates. The result was about one-half of the cider was taken from the can and it was filled with water. In the evening, it was Saturday, the boy took it to the minister, and as he told Mr. Stiles the next evening, his wife and himself before retiring the night before thought they would test the cider, but concluded that as water was once turned into wine, so was cider turned into water. Further explanation followed, and resulted in an investigation on Monday morning. Coming direct to me, Mr. Stiles inquired if I had anything to do with the taking of his cider. My answer was, 'No, sir.' Then he said, 'Some of the hands in your room had, and as you have charge of the room, I shall hold you responsible for it, and no one shall work here again until I find out who the guilty one is,' and ordering all out of the room he immediately locked the door. At that time I was working part of the time on a Commentary of the Minor Prophets, the notes being set in Greek, Hebrew, Arabic, Syriac and Ethiopic. I had been in the office only a few months when I learned that Mr. Draper, the proprietor of the office, had been trying to find in New York and other cities a compositor who could set all these languages, and failed. I was taught to set Greek and Hebrew while at the University office and I offered to undertake to do the work, under the direction of Professor Barrows, the editor. I had completed about 300 pages out of the 458, when the lock-out took place and flattered myself that they could not very well get along without me. A man might be put in my place on the make-up, but no one could be found to take up my work on the Oriental languages, and after losing a week the foreman told me I could go to work again, and was surprised when I informed him that I would not do so until every man in my room was allowed to return, except the guilty one, if he knew who that was. The room had been closed for a week, and in the meantime all but one, a chum of mine, had left town. That individual and myself spent several days carriage riding to Cambridge, Lowell, Lawrence, and other places. Finally Mr. Draper requested an interview with me and after hearing my story offered to pay me for the lost week if I would resume work, but I declined the offer. Asking on what conditions I would resume the work, I told him that as the lock-out resulted in my spending considerable money for carriage hire, I should expect the amount thus expended as well as my week's wages to be made up, and furthermore as my travelling companion had been also unjustly locked out, that he too was to be taken back, otherwise we would leave town together. A day or two after a compromise was made, I was paid for lost time, and we both returned to work. After completing the work, I was presented with a copy and a letter of recommendation as a compositor of Oriental languages, but there was very little call for such workmen. I did, however, accept a job of that kind at the New England Type and Stereotype Foundry, Boston, soon after, under foreman Ramsey, one of the finest men I ever met. While at work at this office I was employed part of the time setting 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' and when I have since seen the authorship of this work disputed, I have thought how few knew what good grounds there is for claiming that Harriet Beecher Stowe did not deserve all the credit for this very popular work. I can remember that page after page of her manuscript was erased, and on the opposite side of the sheet in an entirely different hand, new copy was written, evidently by a man."

JULIA WARD HOWE

Distinguished Success Throughout Her Life

DEATH OF MRS. HOWE

Woman Whose Life Was Crowded With Deeds of Kindness

Boston, Oct. 18.—Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, for three-quarters of a century a leader in everything that pertained to the good of humanity and the advancement of her sex, sometimes called "New England's Grand Old Woman," died at her summer home in South Portsmouth, R. I.
Mrs. Howe was more than 91 years of age, and while the immediate cause of her death was pneumonia, the real cause was her advanced years. Mrs. Howe had been ill since last Wednesday. Yesterday her heart weakened.
At "Oak Glen," Mrs. Howe's summer home, at the time of her death were her three daughters, Mrs. Florence H. Hall, Mrs. Laura E. Richards and Mrs. John Elliott. There were present also John Elliott, her son-in-law. Mrs. Howe's only son, Professor Henry M. Howe, and his wife were on the way to South Portsmouth from New York city.
She was married at the age of 24 to Dr. Samuel G. Howe of Boston, a well-known philanthropist and teacher. After her marriage she made her home in Boston.
WOMAN CANDIDATE FOR STATE OFFICE
Fulfilling Her Duty as Member of the Socialist Party

Waterbury, Conn., Oct. 20.—Mrs. Ella R. Bloor has issued her letter of acceptance of the nomination of secretary of state on the Socialist ticket.

She does so, she says, believing that she fulfils a duty as a member of the party, and in recognition of her responsibilities as an advocate of the cause of equal political rights for women.
She points out that there are 50,000 self-supporting women working under the laws of the state which govern their work and in the making of which they have no voice. She says that one of the aims of the party is to overthrow wage slavery.

CITY CONTRACT ENJOINED

Equity Court Judge Disapproves Surrender to Union Labor
Boston, Oct. 20.—Judge Richardson, sitting in the equity court, ordered an injunction to issue restraining the city of Boston from paying any money to Peter F. Dolan and the latter from proceeding under the contract recently awarded to him by Superintendent Fish of the public buildings department of the city of Boston for installation of electrical equipment in Curtis hall.
The court held that the award to Dolan was illegal because it was given to him and not to James Wilkinson & Co., a lower bidder, because a delegate had called upon Fish and informed him that Wilkinson did not employ union labor and was unfair to it.
This decision is one of the most important to organized labor that has been handed down in years.

ELKINS SERIOUSLY ILL

Nervous Affection of Senator Has Reached Critical Stage
Elkins, W. Va., Oct. 20.—Senator Stephen B. Elkins, the senior senator from this state, is in a critical condition at his home, "Hallehurst." The senator is 67 years of age and his condition has been such that this summer for the first time in many years he has been unable to go abroad as had been his custom, or even to be moved from this district.
He has been suffering from a nervous affection, which has now reached the critical stage.

Turkish Ministers Quit
Constantinople, Oct. 19.—Because of complications over the army budget four important members of the cabinet have resigned.

POTHIER FOR A THIRD TERM

Again Heads Ticket of Rhode Island Republicans

NO OTHER CHANGES MADE

State Officers Unanimously Renominated by Convention—Taft Administration and Payne-Aldrich Tariff Bill Indorsed in Platform—Retirement of Senator Pothier After Long Service is Regretted

Providence, Oct. 20.—Governor Aram J. Pothier of Woonsocket was renominated for a third term by acclamation at the Republican state convention held here. All the other state officers were unanimously renominated. The state ticket follows:

Governor, Aram J. Pothier of Woonsocket; lieutenant governor, Zenas W. Bliss of Cranston; secretary of state, J. F. Parker of Providence; general treasurer, Walter A. Read of Gloucester; attorney general, William B. Greenough of Providence. Representative Jennings of Cranston was temporary chairman and was made permanent chairman. In his address Jennings recited the achievements of the national and state administrations. In his opening he said:

"The opportunity for public service that the hour affords places a grave responsibility on this gathering, for we must not be unmindful that we represent the only agency where decent and efficient administration of public affairs can be looked for."

The platform adopted by the convention starts off with an indorsement of the Taft administration, expresses gratitude to Senator Aldrich for the honor conferred on the state by his achievements and regrets his retirement after twenty-nine years of service, indorses the tariff and the state administration and calls for support of the convention's nominees on the party's record.

Of the Taft administration the platform says: "We indorse the able, dignified and progressive administration of William Howard Taft."

Next it takes up the legislative achievements of the administration and refers to the revision of the tariff, the regulation of the railroads, the establishment of postal savings banks, the punishment of the white slave traffickers and the addition of two new states to the union. The language used regarding the tariff follows:

"The tariff has been revised according to the basic principles of the Republican party to protect American labor and capital and encourage home industries. The Republican party of Rhode Island again asserts its approval."

Of Senator Aldrich it said: "We sincerely regret that Nelson W. Aldrich, who for twenty-nine years has represented the state, has declined to accept another term. We express our confidence in his integrity and our gratitude for the honor he has conferred on his state by his achievements."

The platform contains a plank calling for the establishment of a bureau on taxation to make a further study of tax problems.

TROLLEY CAR UPSETS

Motorman and Three Passengers Killed in Boston Accident
Boston, Oct. 17.—Four persons were killed and fifty-nine were injured when a surface trolley, filled to overflowing, jumped the "S" curve at the Boston end of the West Boston bridge and landed with a deadly crash upon the pavement.
The accident is believed to be due to unwarranted speed while taking the dangerous curve, but it such was the case the motorman, John J. Welch, paid the penalty with his life.

PUT VICTIMS TO SLEEP

Burglars Used Drugs to Quiet Inmates of a Lodging House
Waterville, Me., Oct. 18.—After drugging all of the inmates of the house so that they would not be disturbed in their work, burglars ransacked a boarding house at 5 Appleton street.
So well did their scheme of putting their victims into a sound sleep work that the intruders were able to move about the house at will, stealing money and valuables from the very bed-sides of the unconscious lodgers.

Mandao Gets Twenty Years

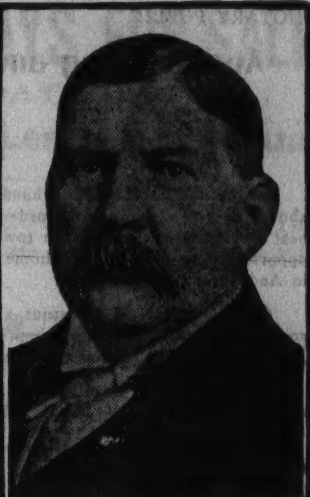

Manila, Oct. 20.—Simcon Mandao, ex-governor of Ilicos Norte, who recently headed an uprising in the province of Nueva Viscaya, was sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment. He received the minimum punishment in consideration of having pleaded guilty and turned state's evidence.

Insanity Plea For Gallagher

New York, Oct. 20.—Insanity will be the defense of James J. Gallagher, when he is tried for shooting Mayor Gaynor. His lawyer says that two alienists have found that Gallagher had senile dementia. Gallagher has not yet been indicted.

SENATOR DOLLIVER DEAD

News Comes as Great Surprise to Friends of the Statesman

Port Dodge, Ia., Oct. 17.—United States Senator Joseph Prentiss Dolliver died of dilation of the heart, caused by an attack of acute indigestion, at his residence Saturday night, while being rubbed by an osteopath physician.

Senator Dolliver's death was unexpected by his relatives and close friends. He had been up all day and had made a trip from his residence down town.

He told several of the men whom he met that he believed he had completely recovered from the indisposition which followed his trip through Wisconsin on a speech-making tour for Senator La Follette.

Senator Dolliver was born near Kingwood, W. Va., Feb. 6, 1858. In 1875 he was graduated from the West Virginia university and three years later was admitted to the bar, and was successful in that profession.

A MILLION OR MORE IN DUTIES INVOLVED

New York Art Dealers Are Charged With Conspiracy

New York, Oct. 18.—Assistant United States District Attorney Temple, representing the government, filed notice in the United States district court of the bringing of a civil suit against the importing firm of Duveen Brothers to recover alleged withheld duties aggregating more than $1,000,000 on articles imported by that firm within the last three years.

The federal grand jury returned indictments against members of the firm of Duveen Brothers on the charge of conspiracy to defraud the government out of duties and importing under-valued goods. Bench warrants were issued for the indicted men.

BRAGANZA DYNASTY ENDS

Peers and Nobility Are Abolished by Republic of Portugal

Lisbon, Oct. 18.—The entire Braganza dynasty, the royal house of Portugal, was banished from Portugal by an official decree issued by the provisional Republican government, which also abolished the house of lords and suppressed all titles of nobility.

Should any member of the royal family return to Portugal he will be deported; a court trial will follow a second offense.

As we observe the near approach of school opening and find ourselves more than ever pinched for room to make a suitable display of students' furniture at that time, we feel compelled to sacrifice about 25 up-to-date Child's Carriages and Go-carts, in order to obtain the space they occupy. We therefore have decided to offer them at 20 per cent off the regular prices which are now very low.

This is no bluff sale, as you may see for yourself upon an inspection of the price tags showing the prices regularly asked.

The goods are all of the best Heywood and Wakefield make, and the sale will continue until the lot is disposed of.

THE TOWN BY A COUNTRYMAN AT HOME

A Successful Institution

The opening for business of the Arlington Trust Company has only a passing interest to Andover people, yet there are many Andover friends of the officials who are responsible for this change. In fact, an Andover boy, now a man of mature years, in the person of Thomas F. Cogswell, is president of the new Trust Company. Mr. Cogswell will be remembered most pleasantly by many of the older residents of the town, who will have a great deal of satisfaction in the marked progress that has been made by the Arlington Bank since Mr. Cogswell became its president, and which is promised for its future growth through the change that now makes of the institution a Massachusetts trust company.

With Mr. Cogswell in this development has been an able board of directors, but a large part of the success is due to the cashier, who had for so many years served in various capacities in the Arlington Bank, James Houston. It isn't pleasant to learn that Mr. Houston's health has weakened under the tremendous load he has been carrying, but those who know him will trust for an early recovery so that he may continue to build into the life of Lawrence as successfully through the agency of the Arlington Trust Company, as he has in his several years of management in the National Bank.

Another Tag Day for the Lawrence Hospital. We cannot say that we like Tag Days for they are more or less of a nuisance, but you can forgive considerable of a nuisance, if out of it is to be secured so much that is worth while as will follow generous patronage of the tag sellers in the interests of such a worthy cause as the Lawrence General Hospital. Andover's part is large in the work of this institution. Many of our wealthy people have long been patrons and loyal supporters. Many who have suffered have had the bed a little easier and the comfort a little more, because of the excellent management in control. All kinds, classes, and shades of people are touched by the benefactions of this institution, and the response from all kinds, shades, and classes should be generous, especially when the opportunity is offered for giving of the "littlest" such as is offered in connection with the Tag Day to come tomorrow. By the way, here in Andover they don't tag you only in so far as to say "you are it" for a drop in some one of the boxes placed in public places.

Several serious street railway accidents are being reported due to leaves on the track. Few people appreciate what a problem it is for the street railway authorities to handle their heavy cars on the hills of New England during the fall months. The natural frosty morning air makes the tracks slippery enough with no other difficulty involved, but when to this condition is added the dropping leaves that quickly change to a greasy mass, it is only by eternal vigilance that the railway is able to move its cars at all in some sections. A recent request to one of the big railroad presidents of New England for the correction of some trouble in his system brought forth the answer in the shape of a question, "Yes, it was due to one of the twenty-four thousand men for whom I am willing to be held responsible, but do you realize what a tremendous task it is to be responsible for that number of separate minds, and twice that number of separate hands and feet?"

October 31 is the date for the Harvest Ball. The Andover Guild is to benefit, but perhaps not the most largely after all, for he who gives gets the most, and it is to be sincerely hoped that there will be a great, big generous giving in connection with this initial entertainment. A great gathering of Andover ladies is enlisted to make the affair a success, and they are being aided by earnest work on the part of the men. Altogether we should see not only a goodly sum secured for the Guild, but a most enjoyable evening provided for the people of the town.

Hooray! two less "thank-you-marms" in town, and they were wicked ones too. The one leading from School Street to Abbott Street, and from School Street to Locke Street. Deep gullied gutters, a bounce and a jolt, and a jolt and a bounce, now no more because of the very effective pipes bringing the highway to grade from one street to the other, and evidently ample to carry away all the water coming down School Street. There is some real progress making in connection with these repairs on the hill, and Supt. Gould is to be congratulated that such is the case.

Toys for Christmas

Have your children any toys or dolls that they are ready to part with? The T. W. T. club of the South church have undertaken for their Xmas work the repairing and restoring any such for the poorer children's Christmas and would be grateful for any whole or broken toys. They may be left at the Gift Shop. Several contributions of toys have been received, but more are needed.

THE STATE BY A COUNTRYMAN ABROAD

Let Us Have Clean Issues

The Democrats have at last secured a candidate for Governor and it isn't going to be difficult to draw pretty sharp lines between Eugene N. Foss and Eben S. Draper in deciding who is the better man for Chief Executive of the Commonwealth. There will be little use in making a Republican campaign for Gov. Draper's re-election along the lines of abuse of Mr. Foss; either abuse of the gentleman because he has shifted from the Republican party to the Democratic, or because of his attitude on the labor question, or because of the factors that have made him the candidate of the Democratic party. There are much better issues upon which the people will be glad to hear the campaign discussed, than such issues as the above. It is well that Mr. Foss is the candidate, however strong he may be, because it will give an opportunity for the people to hear and understand better what the last tariff stands for, what reciprocity with Canada would mean to many of the people of this Commonwealth, what the vital issues as contained in the Democratic platform really represent, in their possible benefits to the people.

Let us have a thorough discussion of these questions that Mr. Foss has been agitating all these years. Let them be discussed fairly on their merits without any political backbiting or any undue heat caused by any of the side issues that are at the present time so prominent. We are of those Republicans who believe that such a discussion is not to be to the disadvantage of the Republican party. It never has been to the disadvantage of the Republican party to have the issues between the two leading parties clearly understood. There is no greater menace to present and future success for the Republican party in the nation than the failure of the average man to know what the two parties stand for, and what capacity they represent for legislation and government. There is time for a short, sharp and aggressive conflict, and with a clear presentation of the issues, the result on election night will be the re-election of the Republican candidates by an old-fashioned Republican majority.

Editorial Cinders

The Townsman expressed the sentiment pretty generally believed among political observers that in the contest made against Senator Bennett, the aid of Mr. Walsh of Lowell would be enlisted to carry the Lowell ward. This sentiment grew out of the generally accepted idea that Mr. Walsh was friendly to Mr. Ames and would help in the effort to keep Senator Bennett out of his second term. In justice to Mr. Walsh, the Townsman is glad to publish the fact that when the time came for the caucuses, Mr. Walsh was found to be a strong aid for Mr. Bennett's re-election, refusing absolutely to have anything to do with the cheap political move engineered in the shoe string district to gain a supporter for Butler Ames for the United States Senate. Friends of Mr. Bennett, and friends of clean politics as well, are not likely to forget this position taken so manfully by Alonzo G. Walsh, and it isn't a very difficult thing to predict that the man who will succeed Senator Bennett when there is a change, will be the gentleman from Lowell who has shown that he is not a truckler to cheap political schemes.

Over in Lawrence, under the title of "Worse Things Have Happened," Walter E. Rushforth sends out an announcement that he is a candidate for Mayor. The announcement is characteristically clever, and it is an actual fact that worse things might happen than to elect the Critic Editor to this position. We cannot for the life of us see why Mr. Rushforth should be seeking a Republican nomination, but we can see that if he succeeds in getting it, he stands a very excellent chance of being defeated, as expressed in his circular. Certainly if Mr. Rushforth should be elected Mayor, there would be sure to follow some progressive administration, combining many features that would make city government in Lawrence continue to be of interest to the people at large. We are glad, however, to believe that the interest wouldn't be along the lines of such graft as has been recently charged to the Mayor's office. Yes indeed, Brother Rushforth, worse things have happened than your election to the office of Mayor of Lawrence would be.

Mayor Howard of Salem has had enough and is going to retire. We doubt if the people of Salem as a whole will regret this determination on his part. His pathetic plaint, however, in connection with his announcement, is the subject for considerable comment throughout the state, but no more sensible words have been uttered about it than those published in the Chelsea Record, where it is suggested that he has been partaking of his own medicine if it is true that he has been "insulted, humiliated, and hounded." Certainly no one else ever so maligned the city of Salem as has this self same Mayor, and we congratulate the Witch City on standing a good chance of being rid of a twentieth century spook who has been very little less of a nuisance to the body politic of that city, than were the witches of a century or more ago.

OBITUARY

MRS. ARTHUR E. COLE

At the South church on Wednesday afternoon, occurred the funeral of the late Mrs. Sarah Woods Cole, wife of Arthur E. Cole, formerly of Lawrence, but for a long time resident of Orono, Maine. Deceased was well known to many Andover people through her frequent visits to brothers and sisters, a number of whom live here in town. Essentially a home woman, her life had been centered almost entirely in the care and ministrations given to her children, of whom four survive her. Mrs. Cole was a woman of the sweet and kindly nature, such as make the New England home the finest place in the world for living. A neighbor of the broadest charity, a mother full of her children's interests, a wife whose every thought was for husband and father, Mrs. Cole left the impress of a woman of more than ordinary parts, controlled by the simple tastes that dominate New England character.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Clark Carter, and interment was in the family lot at Spring Grove cemetery. Mrs. Cole is survived by her husband, who lives in Melrose, and three sons and one daughter. The daughter is at present engaged in charity work in Connecticut; the oldest son, Charles, is an engineer in Boston; William H., the second son, is a partner in the firm of F. H. Roberts & Co., Boston, and Walter, the youngest son, is also engaged in business in Boston. A large gathering of friends of the family were present at the funeral, and great masses of beautiful flowers were there to still further attest the affection held for the departed by many former friends and acquaintances.

MRS. MARY J. HOWELL

On Friday afternoon, October 14, just as the sun was setting in the western sky, Mrs. Mary Howell passed to rest. Although she had not been ill long, her death was not unexpected by her family, but it came as a shock to all who knew and loved her. For she was dearly loved and will be greatly missed. Missed by neighbors and friends to whom she ministered in case of need; missed by the church to which she belonged and in whose affairs she always took an active interest; missed by the family, of which she was the guiding hand, and missed by one and all who knew this gentle woman. No case of sickness nor of sorrow, of which she was aware, but received her kindly sympathy and aid. Quiet, unobtrusive, and caring not for earthly praise, she served the Master she loved, well. Surrounded by all her family, she died as she had lived, in peace.

Mary Jane (Allen) Howell was born in Andover, February 9, 1854, the only daughter of the late William and Rebecca (Pearson) Allen. On February 9, 1876, she was married to John Howell. After the death of her parents the old homestead was sold and the family moved to their present residence on Summer street. Eight children, seven of whom are living, blessed the union of this couple who for thirty-four years have lived so happily together. They are William, Minnie, Ethel, Eva and Alice of this town, and George and Arthur of Melfort, Saskatchewan, Canada. Funeral services were held at her late home on Monday at two o'clock. Among quantities of the flowers she loved, the dear one lay asleep. The service was conducted by Rev. F. A. Wilson of the Free church, assisted by Rev. Mr. Handy of the Ballardvale Methodist church. The bearers were George and Arthur Howell, David M. May and Frank M. Foster. After a short service at the grave the body was lowered to its last resting-place in the family lot in Spring Grove cemetery.

In Memoriam

MRS. JOHN HOWELL

A dear, dear soul has gone to rest
Away from earthly care and pain.
Her Master called her spirit home,
We would not bring her back again.
We would not ask that she, once more,
Should bear the burdens here below,
Nor pass again through toll and tears,
But, Oh, dear Christ, we miss her so.
We miss her ready sympathy,
Her gentle hand, her kindly face,
Her goodness and her love for all.
There is not one can fill her place.
This dear, sweet soul has gone to rest,
Has gone to claim her just reward,
She knoweth now the heavenly peace.
She's with her Master, Friend, and God.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thus publicly thank our kind friends for their sympathy and kindness shown us during the sickness of our loved one; also for the many beautiful flowers that brightened the sorrow caused by her death.

Mr. John Howell and Family

Card of Thanks

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to all friends who gave so generously of aid and sympathy during the illness and death of our little one.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Smith

North Andover Wins

In the first tournament of the series between the Andover and North Andover clubs, held in the rooms of the North Andover club, Thursday evening, the local men lost the meet by a total of 9 points to 4. Twenty-five men represented the Andover club and the games consisted of whist, bowling, billiards and pool. Andover won all three points in whist and one in billiards. Weeks defeating Josslyn in the latter game by a narrow margin.

In pool and bowling North Andover won all the points, although the contest was close.

At the close of the meet refreshments were served.

MR. BURNS WILL NOT ACCEPT

Declines Mr. Cole's Invitation to Prove His Charges on a Public Platform.—Correspondence Follows.

Mr. Cole's Invitation

"Joseph L. Burns, Esq.,
Dear Sir:

I notice that you are opening your third political campaign in Andover on a platform of abuse of me. Contrary to my best judgment but in deference to the wishes of close friends, I have for two years ignored your untrue and slanderous statements, but much as I regret lowering myself to your standard of campaigning, it seems unfair to the large number in Andover whom you are seeking to mislead, to longer allow your lies to go unanswered.

That the public may pass its own judgment upon whatever part of your charges are of interest to it, you are invited to present proof of any and all charges that you desire to make against my personal or political character, at the Town Hall, Andover, on either one of the evenings of Oct. 24, 25, or 26, that best suits your convenience. I have reserved the hall for all of the above dates that you may make your own choice of time.

You are requested to make your charges in writing and send a copy of them to me at least four days before the date you select for the meeting. You will be given one hour in which to present your proofs, your time to be divided into two periods, and the same time to be allowed to me for reply. The hall will be free to all who may desire to attend, and no one is to be upon the platform except you and myself. All expenses of the meeting will be borne by me.

I trust that you will advise me promptly which of the above dates will best suit your convenience, and that I may receive at an early date your acceptance of this invitation, and your charges in detail.

Respectfully yours,
John N. Cole.

Andover, Mass., Oct. 10, 1910.

Mr. Burns' Reply

"Hon. John N. Cole,
Dear Sir:

I wish to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of October 10. It gives me real pleasure to see that you have come out from behind the scenes of darkness that have enveloped you, and I am happy to see you are desirous of taking the stump. Your candidate needs your help.

In order to prove some statements it is necessary to summon witnesses, and the place for that is not a Town Hall, but in a Court of Law. I shall be glad at any time to meet you half way.

Just what do you mean by my misleading a large number in Andover? You have been leading them for some time and if you mean that I am trying to show them that fact, I agree with you, I am misleading them, but along the right line, I hope.

You state you are lowering yourself to my standard. That is truly pathetic coming from you, Mr. Cole. I will admit, I can't play the game of political science in the dark and that I don't know all the tricks of the game like you, but I couldn't lower myself to your standard.

The public has already passed its judgment on the political situation in Andover, they know the truth of what my campaign informs them. Some of it is ancient history.

The egotistical fall in the next to the last paragraph of your letter confirms my opinion of you. You state what I shall do and the arrangements you have made. You might make arrangements for the Republican Town Committee, or some of your candidates (you are good at making arrangements) you might tell them what they will do, but you can't do that with me, Mr. Cole. I draw the line on Boss Rule when it comes in my direction.

You know what statements of fact I have made, so does the public, and you really ought to take the stump and give us what you can, but you can't hire any hall for me. I pay my own bills. Do you yours?

You ask me to make my charges in writing and send a copy of them to you at least four days before the date I select. All charges that I have at any time made during my campaigns have always been in writing and sent to you and if you will look among your files (unless perchance these files are no longer in existence, or you have forgotten(?) them) you will find copies of my last year's circulars which I herewith enclose.

More than a year has elapsed since I have presented to the people of Andover the real facts of the political situation here, and although you have had copies of my statements in your possession throughout this time, you have failed to make answer directly or indirectly to any of them.

Under the provisions of the Constitution of the United States freedom of speech is guaranteed to all the citizens of this country, and far be it from me to enter into any compact with you, Mr. Cole, restricting or in any way abridging this right. I do not propose to limit you to 'one hour—divided into two periods' as proposed in your letter of the tenth instant, but I, together with the people of Andover shall wait to hear from you during the next 504 hours that yet remain up to the day of election.

I shall continue in the future till election day, Mr. Cole, to present the facts as I have in the past, whether it meets your approval or not. I suggest to you that you keep the Town Hall on the dates you have reserved, October 24, 25, 26, and under your personal direction as stage manager, with Mr. Eames as the shining (?) star, supported by Mr. Wood, together with Mr. Boutwell as scene shifter, and with the Republican Town Committee as (s)o uppers, present the latest and most stirring drama of the day, entitled 'Abused by Burns.'

Yours truly,
JOSEPH L. BURNS.

P.S. Please find enclosed circulars."

Wedding*BRYANT-PRATT

On Saturday evening last the South church was the scene of an impressive wedding, when Sarah Hartwell, daughter of Mrs. T. F. Pratt of Andover, was united in marriage to Earl Littlefield Bryant of North Brookfield, the Rev. Frank R. Shipman, pastor of the church officiating.

Preceding the ceremony selections on the organ were rendered by Mrs. Heffler, a friend of the bride, and "The Voice that Breathed o'er Eden" was beautifully sung by Miss McMorrow, who for several years had been intimately associated with Miss Pratt in kindergarten work.

To the familiar strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin, the bridal procession moved up the aisle, preceded by the four ushers. They were Mr. Fuller of Newton, Mr. Blanchard of North Brookfield, Mr. Whitmore of Cambridge and Mr. Gould of Boston.

The four bridesmaids, all cousins of the bride, were Miss Helen Mills, Miss Laura Mills, Miss Lucy Abbott and Miss Josephine Abbott. Following them was the matron of honor, Mrs. Whitmore, sister of the groom. Then little Bancroft Pratt, the bride's nephew, scattered rose leaves in the path of the bride, who came in on the arm of her mother, and was met at the altar by the groom, Stanley Pratt acting as best man.

The bride was given away by her mother, and during the impressive ceremony the soloist sang "O Perfect Love." The bridal party left the church to the music of Mendelssohn's wedding march. The church was decorated by Playdon, simply but effectively, palms and chrysanthemums forming an artistic background for the color scheme of the wedding, which was pink and white. The bride was very beautiful in an exquisite gown of white crepe meteor over satin, with veil caught with orange blossoms. She wore a diamond and pearl pendant, the groom's gift, and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaids were in lace-trimmed gowns of white batiste over pink, with girdles of pink messaline, and wore pink flets in their hair. They carried arm bouquets of pink chrysanthemums. The matron of honor was gowned in pink messaline, and carried an exquisite bouquet of Carnot roses, mingled with fine autumn leaves. The little flower boy was also in pink. The mother of the bride was stately in a gown of black crepe de chine, with jet ornaments.

A reception at the home of the bride followed the ceremony, only relatives and intimate friends attending. The rooms were charmingly decorated with garlands of evergreen and autumn leaves, with chrysanthemums in the parlors, and pink carnations in the dining-room. A delicious supper was served by Caterer Rhodes. The bride cake, containing the usual ring, coin and thimble, was cut by the bride amid much merriment.

The gifts were unusually choice and artistic, and were the expression of the heartiest good wishes of many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryant, after a short wedding journey, will make their home at North Brookfield, where Mr. Bryant is engaged in the manufacture of rubber goods.

Harvest Supper for Choir

The choir of the South church and their friends were tendered a harvest supper last evening by the Woman's Union. At half-past six a merry party, hungry for the good things which they knew were in store for them, gathered in the church parlor and shortly after sat down to the inviting tables. The supper was a genuine harvest one, and the decorations of autumn foliage were also in keeping with the occasion. Delicious baked beans, rolls, coffee, doughnuts, escalloped oysters, olives, fruit, and last but not least, pumpkin pie, were served. After the supper a vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. N. E. Bartlett and her assistants who had charge of the affair. Miss Mary Alice Abbott, who was the hostess of the evening, then read a humorous selection entitled, "Why Milly Didn't Sing." After a short rehearsal of the choir the party dispersed.

Visitors at Andover

Among recent visitors to Andover was Rev. Samuel W. Boardman, D. D., of Bloomfield, N. J., formerly president of Maryville college, Tennessee, who called on Rev. C. C. Torrey, his chum in Bartlett Hall fifty-eight years ago—in the room occupied by Dr. Elias Riggs twenty years before that! Another visitor was Miss Mary W. Hackett of Newton, a daughter of Rev. Prof. Horatio B. Hackett, the distinguished scholar and author, who was a Phillips Academy student with Oliver Wendell Holmes in 1825, and later a graduate of the Seminary. She was much interested in seeing the rooms he occupied as a student, his fine portrait in the Academy dining hall, and especially in calling at Professor Ryder's, where she attended Mrs. Edwards's famous "Nunnery School" at the time of the Civil war.

The regular fall meeting of the Trustees of the Academy was held in Andover on Tuesday evening of the current week. The Andover meeting represents a new departure in the policy of the Board, as the meetings heretofore have regularly been held in Boston, with the exception of the meeting of commencement week. Hereafter it is planned to hold at least three, and perhaps all four, of the quarterly meetings of the Board in Andover. In this way it is felt that the relations between the Trustees, the Faculty, and the student body will be made much closer, with distinct advantage to all concerned.

At yesterday's meeting all of the members were present, with the exception of Mr. Knapp, who is in Europe, and Mr. Stimson, whose campaign for Governor of New York State made it impossible for him to attend. The members reached Andover during the afternoon and spent several hours inspecting the school property, and especially the latest acquisition—Williams Hall. They dined together at the Dining Hall, the meeting being held later at the Principal's office. Those who were present were Mr. Alfred L. Ripley, President of the Board; Judge John A. Aiken; Professor James Hardy Ropes of Cambridge; Mr. Clarence Morgan; Professor Clifford H. Moore of Cambridge; Elias B. Bishop; Dr. Fred T. Murphy; Mr. James C. Sawyer, Treasurer; and Principal Stearns.

Among the items of business the question of limiting the size of the school, and the best methods by which to accomplish this result, were carefully discussed, but no definite action was taken.

The plans submitted recently by the special committee on a new dormitory were formally approved, and the Trustees expressed themselves in favor of locating this building, when the necessary funds shall have been raised, at the southeast corner of the Seminary campus, thereby practically extending the present Seminary row. Although no very active campaign has yet been undertaken in behalf of this project, $22,000 of the amount needed have already been subscribed. It is hoped that ground can be broken before next spring.

The estimated cost of the building complete, as designed by Mr. Guy Lowell of Boston, is $50,000.00, and it will be financed in the following manner:

The committee of the Trustees will sell one hundred $500.00 twenty year, 4 1-2 per cent notes, guaranteed by the Trustees, as to principal and interest, and callable in whole or in part at any interest period on thirty days' notice, the interest being payable semi-annually on January 1st and July 1st. The Trustees will redeem at least two thousand dollars (four notes) of the principal each year, beginning January 1, 1913. In case the notes cannot be purchased at par, they will be drawn by lot. Each note will be numbered and registered so that checks for interest may be mailed by the Academy Treasurer to the registered owners.

This manner of financing the dormitory will enable many of the young graduates, who are not in a position to make a direct gift of cash, to render important aid to the Academy. For in this way they can make a sure investment, netting 4 1-2 per cent, and get their original investment back at the longest in twenty years.

The Trustees voted to appoint a permanent committee on memorials, to consist of the Principal of the Academy, Mr. Ropes of the Trustees, and Mr. Forbes of the Faculty. The duty of this committee will be to conserve the historic data belonging to the school, and to assume general oversight of the installation of memorial tablets, etc. It is hoped in the near future to begin the erection of a series of simple but dignified tablets in the Chapel in memory of prominent graduates of the school.

It was also voted to charge in the future a slight registration fee of applicants for admission to the school. In this way it is hoped to overcome in part the difficulties arising from the large number of applicants who each year fail to appear at the opening of the school, and for whom in many cases rooms have been definitely held.

The old officers of the Board were re-elected, as follows: President, Mr. Ripley; Clerk, Mr. Stearns; Treasurer, Mr. Sawyer. The Executive Committee for the year will be composed of the following members: Mr. Ripley, Chairman; Messrs. Ropes, Sawyer, Moore, Bishop, Murphy and Stearns.

Joseph Parsons of Lakeville, Ct., class of 1889, was elected to fill a vacancy on the board of trustees.

Bowling

The first match game of the season was played on the Hillside House alleys Wednesday evening, between teams representing the Smith & Dove Overseers' club and the company's office. Some good strings were rolled by bowlers on both sides, but Lawson of the Overseers was high roller of the game with a single string of 102 and a total of 272. The Overseers won two strings and the pinfall, by 1247 to 1199.

ABBOTT VILLAGE

James Nolan, an old and well-known resident of the village, passed quietly to rest at his home on Cuba street last Sunday morning. Funeral services were held in St. Augustine's church Tuesday forenoon and the remains were interred in St. Mary's cemetery. Mr. Nolan leaves a widow, three sons and two daughters to mourn his loss.

James Tupper of Brechin Terrace spent last week visiting at Peori, N. Y.

The sympathy of the whole village goes out to George Buss in his sad bereavement. Mrs. Buss and her baby both died last Monday noon. Funeral services were held in St. Augustine's church Wednesday forenoon, interment taking place in St. Augustine's cemetery. The husband and four small children are left to mourn her loss.

ANDOVER HOME FOR AGED PEOPLE

Special Meeting

A Special Meeting of the Andover Home for Aged People will be held at the Board of Public Works Rooms, Town House, on Tuesday evening, November 1, 1910, at 7.30 o'clock.

1. To amend the By-Laws by rescinding Paragraph 1 of Article 2, and substituting the following:

The Corporation shall be composed of the persons named in the certificate of incorporation; of such persons as shall give to the Corporation at any one time $25 and upwards and who shall be styled life members; and all annual subscribers of $1 or upwards.

2. To transact any other business that may legally come before the meeting.

EMILY CARTER, Clerk.
Andover, October 17, 1910.

Andover Association Will Meet

The fall meeting of the Andover Association of Congregational churches and ministers will be held at the South church in Lawrence, on Tuesday afternoon and evening, October 25. The moderator of the meeting will be Rev. Frank G. Alger of Lowell; alternate, Justin E. Varney of Lawrence. The committee in charge, which consists of Rev. A. C. Ferrin of Lowell, Henry A. Smith of Lowell, Rev. Arthur Barber of Lawrence, and Rev. George E. Lovejoy of Lowell, has arranged an interesting program. The afternoon session will begin at 2.45. After the devotional exercises and a business session there will be an open forum commencing at 3.30, during which several interesting topics will be discussed by appointed speakers, after which general discussion will be in order. These topics will include "Methods of providing for church expenses," "Relation of the pastor to church finances," "Why does the church maintain a Sunday school?" "Echoes of the Boston meetings." Among the speakers will be Messrs. Norman T. Wilcox of Lowell, Justin E. Varney of Lawrence, Harry A. Smith of Lowell. Another business session will be held at 5.30, after which a collation will be served. The two principal features of the evening session will be addresses by Principal A. E. Stearns on "A Young Man's Religion," and by Professor Eliza H. Kendrick of Wellesley College on "A Young Woman's Religion."

Illustrated Lecture

On Thursday evening, October 27, Mr. Moorehead will give an illustrated lecture on "The Painted Desert and the Cliff-Dwellers." About eighty lantern slides will be shown, giving a glimpse of the various scenes in the southwest. Many of the slides are colored. The lecture begins at eight o'clock and will be given in the hall of the Archaeology building. The public is cordially invited to be present. Admission is free.

Sale and Entertainment

The Christian Endeavor society of the South church will hold a sale and entertainment on Friday evening, October 28, in the vestry. Ice cream, cake, candy, fancy articles, jellies, potted plants and flowers will be on sale. There will also be a mystery table. The entertainment will consist in part of solos by Mrs. F. G. Moore, readings by Miss Erving and Reginald Chutter. An admission fee of ten cents will be charged, the proceeds of the evening to go towards the fund for winter flowers.

Abbot Academy Catalogues

Abbot Academy desires to obtain early catalogues and other printed or written matter relating to the first years of the school. If former students and others who have such material stored away would be willing to pass it over for preservation in the archives, they would do a substantial service to the old school. It is supposed that no catalogues were published in the years 1833, 1838, and 1853, hence any bearing those dates would be invaluable. No catalogues after that of 1865 are needed.

Phillips Academy Notes

On Saturday afternoon the second team of Phillips Academy defeated the Lawrence high school team, 111 to 0. The game was considerably hindered by the rain which fell during the afternoon.

Dr. Barbour of New York City, international secretary of the Y. M. C. A., gave an interesting address at the meeting of the Society of Inquiry on Sunday evening on "Is Life Worth While?"

Caledonians Defeat Trimmers

The Caledonians defeated the Trimmers on the Essex street bowling alleys Monday evening by a total pinfall of 1277 to 1224. Hutton of the Caledonians was high roller, getting a total pinfall of 279 and one string of 109. Innis was second with 260 for three strings, and 96 for a single string. It was a close and interesting game, the winners winning by only 53 pins.

The summary:

CALEDONIANS
Hutcheson	86	91	60

McDOUGALL'S MUSINGS

Shoddy

There is lots of shoddy in the world. There are men and women full of shoddy. They try to pass for pure wool what is not wool, but only hypocrisy and pretence. They forget that "An honest man is the noblest work of God." They don't even get the hang of Robert Ingersoll's version of that sentiment, viz: "An honest God is the noblest work of man." Anything that is spurious is shoddy. So taking shoddy for a text I will try and keep clear of any mixture not orthodox in what I write in this letter. Human nature at the best is apt to show streaks of shoddy. "When self the wavering balance shakes, 'tis rarely right adjusted." I would enjoy writing on almost any subject but tariff.

The heading of this letter, "Shoddy," I take from Mr. Heber Clark's friendly letter on the tariff, and as some clergymen do, I will try and keep to my text.

Mr. Clark says that they use more shoddy in England than in America; perhaps he knows. I only suggest that the dress coat that Senator Lodge and his good self wears at dinner was manufactured in England. It is free from shoddy. Why are we so stupid as to pay a big duty on English woolen broadcloth? Why do our tailors advertise Scotch or Irish tweeds made in Harwick and Blarney, as being superior in quality or style? Why do our dry goods men import ladies' dress goods made of wool from France, where Roubaix and Tourquin, two towns I know a little about, make the best dress goods I ever saw. I do not pretend to say that shoddy is not used in Europe in the making of coarse cloth—just as we do here for eight and ten dollar suits. The American people must be credulous or very foolish to buy shoddy goods abroad and pay a big duty if they can get the same goods cheaper in this country.

Just as I am writing a neighbor calls and she tells me of a nice gingham cotton dress she has bought for one of her girls, at the same time telling me it is Glasgow Scotch gingham, far better than our American imitations. It wears longer, the colors do not fade when the dress is washed.

If you want the best golf balls get the Scotch-made balls, so says a bred in the bone stand pat tariff man when he was telling me to play golf. Just ask a dressmaker what kind of needles are the best; she will at once say English needles.

An angler who has once used imported fish hooks will tell you that they are far superior to the American article. Go to any of our textile mills and ask where they get their best machines; they will tell you that they get good machines here, but not so good as in England.

Notice I am not saying that everything English is better than American; far from it. All I contend for is that commerce with the whole world is required and exchange of merchandise beneficial. The extreme narrowness of our friend, Mr. Clark is shown when he says that England would be glad if half of our mills were standing still. Would we be glad if England was in difficulties and not able to buy our produce? Would a store-keeper rejoice when his best customer was a bankrupt? In like manner we are England's best client and she naturally is pleased when we are able to buy her goods.

Senator Lodge, as I see it, mixes shoddy with good sense. He tells the good folks of Wakefield that the tariff has not been the cause of high prices, and at the same time trembles when he thinks of what the commerce of the country would suffer if duties were reduced. As I see it, if tariffs do not raise prices they are no use.

To tell me that the tariff raises wages and does not raise the price of manufactured goods is pure Nantucket shoddy. After this address at Wakefield I hope the learned Senator got a good dinner. The linen tablecloth, the linen table napkin he used, the crockery on the table, the spoons, forks and knives, were all dearer on account of tariffs.

It is almost pathetic to hear Mr. Lodge deplore the danger to the wages of the working man if tariff is reduced. Why? Simply because merchandise would be cheaper. It is absurd to ignore the fact that goods paying no duty are no dearer.

I think it was a proper thing for that woman the other day to pay eleven thousand dollars duty on forty-five trunks full of dresses—too short at the top and too long at the foot—yet it is a fact that these "creations" were eleven thousand dollars dearer after the duty was paid.

Most of us can put all our belongings into a soap box and be happy. If we are able to eat our dinner and sleep the sleep of the just, let us be cheerful. IAN McDOUGALL.

Hospital Tag Day

The Lawrence General Hospital and Children's Home is once more asking for help from its Andover friends.

The hospital has just completed its thirty-fifth year, the eighth in its present location. The demands upon it in a town like Lawrence must necessarily increase year by year; but unfortunately one can hardly expect the funds for its support to increase with equal strides, without effort on the part of the managers. Hence there is a yearly deficit which the board of directors try yearly to supply by gifts from those who are interested that the hospital shall maintain its efficiency.

est, for being without a hospital of her own, she has special privileges in the Lawrence General Hospital. Patients who can afford to pay for their care are expected to do so; but those who cannot pay, are entitled to five free beds, by the bequest of the late Mrs. Helen G. Coburn. One other free bed is kept for the employees of the Smith & Dove mills. So that in all there are six beds free to Andover patients. Private rooms can of course be had at the usual fee.

As last year, it has been decided to hold a Tag Day in Lawrence to raise the much-needed money, and this will occur Saturday, October 22. But also as last year, the Andover committee have preferred to raise what they can, in co-operation with the Lawrence directors, by simply stating the case, and asking for money. They do so with great earnestness, however; and it is hoped that all who can will contribute through some channel, as much as they can, and as soon as they can. Boxes marked with a red cross will be placed in the principal stores of the town, and contributions may also be sent before November 1, to any one of the Andover committee.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a mortgage given by Daniel A. Carleton to Moses T. Stevens, dated November 2, 1902, recorded with Northern District Essex Deeds, book 181 page 228, and since assigned to Samuel D. Stevens, for breach of condition of said mortgage will be sold by public auction on Monday, November 14th, 1910, at three o'clock in the afternoon at the dwelling-house late of said Daniel A. Carleton (deceased) on Summer Street in North Andover in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, said dwelling-house being on the mortgaged premises, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage namely:

The land and buildings situated in North Andover and in Andover in said Commonwealth which at the date of said mortgage were owned by said Daniel A. Carleton, including the homestead and other lands devised to him by his father (Daniel Carleton) in the year 1891, and all lands acquired by said Daniel A. Carleton from other parties and owned by him at the date of said mortgage, being altogether six hundred acres, more or less, but excepting from the sale to be made hereunder one parcel of seventeen acres more or less in said North Andover called "Long Pasture" which said Daniel A. Carleton conveyed to Elizabeth Leitch by deed dated May 25, 1910, duly recorded, and which was released from the operation of said mortgage by an instrument dated June 13, 1910, duly recorded.

The premises will be sold in one lot subject to five existing prior mortgages of record covering sundry different portions of the premises, said prior mortgages aggregating $7300 and accrued interest thereon, and also subject to any taxes which may be a lien on the premises or any portions thereof.

A deposit of $300 will be required of the purchaser at the time of sale and other terms of sale will be stated at the sale.

ATTRACTIONS AT THE THEATRES

Lawrence Opera House

The same company that supported Miss Helen Grayce during her extended engagement in the very largest cities of the country will be seen during her appearance at the Lawrence Opera House all next week, matinees daily. This means a gathering of skilled players such as are seldom seen on the local stage irrespective of price, and of a kind that is growing more and more rare. The remarkable plays which will be given by Miss Grayce are alone sufficient to cause the most disinterested theatre-goers to pause and give the engagement the most serious consideration. The offerings are as follows: "When Knighthood Was in Flower," "Cowboy and the Lady," "The Man of the Hour," "The Road to Yesterday," "The Clansman," "Beyond Pardon," "Little Brother of the Rich," "The Squaw Man," and "Three Weeks." No better list of popular successes could possibly be given, and the merit of Miss Grayce and her company is so well known that the productions are practically guaranteed to be of a most superior kind. The wagonload upon wagonload of scenery and accessories that will be hauled to the theatre insures a series of the most magnificent stage settings. The management claim that it is by far the largest amount of scenery ever sent to the theatre by a single traveling organization.

Boston Theatres

Majestic—"The Chocolate Soldier."
Park—"Electricity."
Castle Square—"The Talk of New York."
Hollis St.—"The Lily."
Tremont—"The Fortune Hunter."
Shubert—"The Dawn of a Tomorrow."
Colonial—"The Arcadians."
Grand Opera House—"The Turning Point."
Boston—"Girles."

MAJESTIC

"The Chocolate Soldier" was welcomed to the Majestic theatre this week. The piece is a comic opera with a score that is delightful from beginning to end. The cast is a good one and the entire production is one that cannot fail to please in Boston.

COLONIAL

"The Arcadians" is delighting large audiences at the Colonial theatre. The grace of the piece, as well as the beauty of the staging will long be remembered.

CASTLE SQUARE

A musical comedy, "The Talk of New York," began a two weeks' run at Castle Square on Monday. The piece is cram full of mirth and there is "something doing" every minute. It is as great a success as "The Circus Girl."

SHUBERT

Gertrude Elliott is on the last week of her engagement in "The Dawn of a Tomorrow." The play has attracted considerable attention because of its contrast to the usual plays of the day, and because of the good cheer and optimism that runs through it.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE

An American comedy drama, "The Turning Point," replete with stirring situations and acting, is at the Grand Opera House. The first scene is laid in Virginia, the second in New-York City, where the southern hero successfully passes through several perplexing situations.

PARK

The Park theatre beginning Monday, October 24, will be about the jolliest place in the land, for on that night "Seven Days" begins an engagement there. Foremost dramatic critics proclaim it the best comedy ever produced in America. For two years it has been running at the Astor theatre in New York, where, as one writer said, "it rocked Broadway with laughter." Two years is a tremendous run. A play that can achieve it is exceptional. From this record run in New York "Seven Days" comes to Boston with the entire brilliant Astor theatre cast. Mary Roberts Rhinehart and Avery Hopwood wrote "Seven Days." They have taken some of New York's smart set and quarantined them in the house of one of their number with a burglar and a policeman. Amusing mix-ups have been started before the quarantine. The quarantine lasts a week—seven days—of riotous mirth, side-splitting laughter and tumultuous merriment that does not let up for a fraction of a second. "See 'Seven Days' and laugh seven months," is the advice a magazine gave to its readers. The night performances will start at 8 o'clock so suburbanites can catch trains, and the Wednesday and Saturday matinees will begin at 2 o'clock.

BOSTON

The most important dramatic production of the present season will take place at the Boston theatre on Monday evening, October 24, when Charles Frohman will present for the first time in America the current sensational dramatic success of London, "The Speckled Band," an adventure of Sherlock Holmes, by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. It will be presented with a cast of unusual excellence.

In "The Speckled Band," which is now running with wonderful success at the Globe theatre, London, the detective (Sherlock Holmes) does not by any means occupy the whole of the stage, though he has an important influence on the action of the drama. The predominant personage is the villain, who is a great deal before the audience and who is a bold, big and emphatic individual. Out of his short but thrilling story of a cunning crime Sir Arthur Conan Doyle has evolved a highly sensational and enthralling drama of crime, and its demonstration of affairs holds them in a grip of iron and leaves them at the close in a state of excited satisfaction. The play will be produced under the immediate supervision of Mr. Charles Frohman.

LAWRENCE

The Merrimack Valley conference of Universalists met in Lawrence on Wednesday, October 19.

The Arlington National bank was transferred the first of the week to the Arlington Trust company which will take its place.

Former Resident Dies

Samuel Locks Lamson, son of the once proprietor of the old Mansion House on the Hill, passed away recently at Keene, N. H., at the age of seventy-six years. He will be remembered by some of the older residents. He had lived for many years at the little seaside resort, Pigeon Cove, Mass., where he was always glad to entertain his many friends. The late George W. Dove was one of his old-time friends. Mr. Lamson had his little home filled with relics and quaint curios, and it was his pleasure to entertain his visitors with stories—and they were many—connected therewith. He was Captain Lamson of his dory, and spent many of the beautiful summer days conducting pleasure parties to the islands off the coast. Mr. Lamson was never married, but since the death of his mother has lived by himself, spending the winter months in New Hampshire and returning each summer to Pigeon Cove. His body was laid by the side of his father and mother at New Boston, N. H.
